Introduction

The Intern is a meteorological trainee, involved in forecasting and interpretive studies and/or conducting related projects and programs. The Intern adapts general forecasts to conform to observed local weather phenomena and prepares warnings and advisories. Once qualified, the Intern warns or alerts general public of immediate danger situations such as hurricanes, tornadoes and other severe storms by issuing local statements, warnings and advisories in accordance with procedures. The intern also retrieves and evaluates climatological data from standard data sources and analyzes and reports data using standard statistical methods and procedures.
